Porter Names Non-Clinical Managers of the Year

VALPARAISO -- Porter Associates Adrienne Bryan and Amy Hochstetler have been named Porter's "Non-Clinical Managers of the Year." Nominated by both peers and supervisors, Adrienne and Amy were selected based on their dedication, excellence and commitment in the arena of finance and financial reporting.

In nominating the two for the honor, Porter CFO Cheryl Harmon wrote, "Adrienne and Amy have worked day and night to make sure we meet our deadlines and that all of our data and financial information is accurate. They function so well as a team they have been dubbed, 'the twins.'"

For their part, Bryan and Hochstetler say they work well together because they have similar work styles and are both laid back and respectful of the other. They readily agree their talents complement each other – Bryan keeps track of expenses, liabilities and joint ventures side while Hochstetler works the revenue and accounts receivable side.

Both have public accounting backgrounds and degrees and chose to return to Porter County for the opportunities offered by the health system.
